The path can be accessed by persons with reduced mobility

1. Starting at the Fer à Cheval restaurant, take the road going up to the hamlet of Frenalay, a traditional agropastoral area.
2. When you head back, you’ll see to your right an alternative path through a small forest to return to the restaurant (path for motorized vehicles).

Frenalay loop

1. From the car park, after the toilets, take the path towards the Cirque du Fer à Cheval (2 min). Pass in front of the Fer à Cheval restaurant, the riding school and the information chalet following the direction “Fond de la Combe”.
2. When you reach the clearing after the pond, take the path to the right towards Frenalay. This peaceful and charming hamlet is a typical example of the traditional agropastoral architecture found in the Giffre Valley.
3. From here, take the road and return down to the starting point.

Giffrenant loop

1. For the starting point, begin on the Frenalay loop as noted above up to the clearing.
2. From here, take the path to the left which will bring you towards “Fond de la Combe” until you enter the Sixt-Passy Nature Reserve.
3. After the Samosse footbridge, keep an eye out for an ibex or two on the cliffs in front of you.
4. Take the path to the left heading towards Giffrenant. This mountain pasture was once tended to by canons from the abbey.
5. Once in the hamlet, take the path leading back down to the car park.

Bout du Monde loop

1. For the starting point, begin on the Giffrenant loop as noted above up to the Samosse footbridge.
2. From here, follow the sign for “Fond de la Combe”.
3. You can return to the car park on the left bank once you reach the Prazon snack bar.
   a. Or you can continue on a bit more.
   b. At the Fond de la Combe footbridge, continue straight towards the Bout du Monde.
   c. At the bottom of the cliff, return to the footbridge and then the car park by following the left bank.

Safety INFO

Because of the particularities of the site and for safety reasons, the site can close down temporarily in the event of thunderstorms. Due to this risk, parking is only allowed in designated car parks.
